A RISING STAR

Furying into the world of comedy is no small feat, and this is especially true in India where it is only seen as good enough to become a doctor, lawyer or engineer. That brings us to Jaspreet Singh, an up-and-coming comedian who hasn't given up his day job just yet. Garvit Kaur catches up with the comic about his multi-city tour and more

What can people expect when they come to see you perform?

Most of the stories I tell are about my life. On stage, I generally tell stories from my life, and I try to make them as relatable as possible. I try to make people laugh by talking about my life, and I try to make them feel like they are not alone in their struggles.

What qualities do other comedians have that you admire?

I know very few comedians personally. But, I like that some comedians are extremely respectful and always respond to calls. I've seen Abhinav Shukla in the best example. You have any kind of question, and he picks up your call even in the middle of the night. I admire comedian Anil Pandey, for he has single-handedly

Jaspreet Singh believes in his unique brand of comedy

It is a situation which is an integral part of an Indian family when a young member tries to be smart and offers a suggestion, elders ask him/her to be 'chup'. "I have faced this because I am the youngest in my family," points out Jaspreet Singh, who is set to explore this fundamental aspect through jokes and one-liners in his stand-up show 'Tu Toh Chup Hi Reh'. To be staged this Friday in the city, the title is part of a story and the show will be interspersed with lot of references.

First visit

There is a mix of excitement and anxiety as Jaspreet shares his feelings. "I am mostly nervous as I am performing in Hyderabad for the first time." A native of Amritsar, Jaspreet has been working in Gurugram for seven years now. When his friend introduced him to the art of stand-up comedy, he felt at ease. "My first reaction was that I have been doing it all the time. Standing in front of an audience and telling a joke as though you are talking to them felt so natural. The only difference is that with stand-up comedy I had to hold a mic."

Observational comedy

Don't be funny!

The two-day festival at Kalagram might be called Just Comedy, but if who's who of the stand-up comedy park themselves on the same stage, one can expect much more than just comedy
